NEW SCHOOL BULLETIN OUT

OUTLINE OF WORK FOR SCHOOL DURING PRESENT YEAR.

FROM SUPT'S. OFFICE

Health Education To Be Again Carried Out in the Schools of County, Somerville's Aim.

An outline of the work for the school year, 1925-1926, is being sent out from the office of the county superintendent of schools, Leslie G. Somerville, this week. The outline gives the necessary material and suggestions as to methods of instruction in all subjects in each of the eight grades of the elementary schools of the county. This outline is a part of the annual September bulletin sent out just before the schools re-open on September 7.

The first page of the bulletin is devoted to a discussion of professional ethics for the schoolteacher and to suggestions for the opening few days of school work.

Health education will again be carried on throughout the year in the rural schools by the staff of the Nodaway County Health Department. All beginners in school will be examined some time during the school term. An effort will be made to give the Schick Test to all the children to find out how many were rendered immune to Diphtheria by the administration of Toxin-Antitoxin.

Toxin-Antitoxin will be given in schools where they will organize five or more in a group. The hot lunch will be stressed where the examination shows the children underweight.

Miss Edith Cramer, former nurse of the Green County Health Association, will be with this department commencing September 1st, and will be assigned to work in our rural schools.

A section is also devoted to rulings concerning eighth grade pupils and examinations. Pupils who passed in some subjects last year are not excused from those studies this year. If a grade of 80 per cent or above was made in the examination, he is excused from taking the examination again, but must take all the work with the class. There is no danger of knowing too much about a subject. Only those pupils who have spent two years in "A" class will be permitted to take the final examinations, papers of others will be barred. Pupils who hold grades from last year's examination will not be eligible to compete for scholarships. In other words, those competing for scholarships must take all the examinations. Pupils of approved schools of the second class will be exempted from examinations in four of the subjects provided their grades in each of these subjects is 80 per cent or better and they do not fall below 60 per cent in any subject.

With the consent of the State Department of Education, those rural schools of Nodaway County, meeting the requirements of a First-Class rural school are to be given special recognition. Those pupils completing the course this year, who have been doing good work, will, upon the recommendation of their teacher, be granted the rural school diploma without final examination. This recognition is given with the understanding that the school is meeting the new requirements and has been inspected and approved this year. It is further understood that in case of questionable work by the pupil, final examinations must be taken.

Attention is called to the compulsory attendance laws of the State of Missouri. Every child between the ages of 7 and 14 years, and 14 to 16 unless regularly and lawfully employed for at least six hours each day in some useful employment of service, shall attend school not less than the entire time the school which the child attends is in session unless the child is physically or mentally incapacitated.

The Maryville Chamber of Commerce will again furnish talent for community entertainments this year. Complete plans for this will be announced in the September bulletin of the county superintendent. The Chamber of Commerce is now making plans for a Fall Fiesta to be held the last week of September. Complete plans will be announced at a later date.

Other parts of the bulletin deal with classification of pupils, grades, report cards, grade books, and a suggested program for Frances Willard Day, September 28.

SAYS CRACKS DON'T MATTER

LETTER FROM B. H. PIEPMEIER GIVES PAVING INFORMATION.

CONCRETE ROADS BEST

State Highway Engineer Says Cracks Expected in Concrete, but That Doesn't Stop Long Service.

B. H. Piepmeier, chief engineer for the State Highway Commission and one of the foremost road authorities in the United States, has written the Bethany Republican to still the doubts of perhaps a great many of their readers who think that when a concrete pavement cracks, it signifies the road is going to pieces. Piepmeier says in his letter:

"I am enclosing a short statement concerning concrete pavements. Inasmuch as you have some concrete roads being built in your vicinity, undoubtedly some of your readers will raise the question of permanency when cracks appear in some of the concrete roads.

I thought possibly this short statement might be in interest to some of your readers."

The general statement follows:

"Many people are ready to condemn concrete pavements as soon as cracks appear. If the cracks are kept filled with tar or asphalt under proper maintenance, there need be no fear from cracking of concrete pavements. Engineers know that a pavement will crack soon after it is built and will continue to do so for several years.

"Concrete pavements have been built very extensively in all parts of the United States for the last ten years. Many concrete roads in the Chicago territory have been in use for fully ten years under traffic varying from ten to twenty thousand vehicles per day. All of these roads have cracked, but they continue to carry the traffic in a very satisfactory manner and indications are that they will continue to do so for many years to come. Concrete roads around Chicago under the heavy traffic conditions which exist there, get more traffic in one year than the average concrete road in Missouri will get in five years. Missouri is now building concrete roads that are as good, if not better, than those being built by any other state in the Union.

"The new type of concrete road now being built should carry Missouri's traffic far beyond the thirty year period, which is the life of the $60,000,000 bonds. No one should fear, therefore, the outcome of concrete roads, if they are properly maintained. The gasoline tax will insure maintenance. Concrete roads are very economical. All tests that have been made show that its surface has a very low tractive resistance. This means that it takes less gasoline or power to pull a given load over a concrete road than over practically any concrete type of surfacing. It is estimated that the saving in gasoline alone in driving over concrete roads will soon pay for the investment."

2 KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH

HEAD-ON COLLISION OF TOURIST SPECIAL.

IN COLORADO CANON

Engineers Save Lives by Jumping—Telegraph Operator Is Partially Blamed for Wreck.

Salida, Colo., Aug. 21.—Two firemen, J. W. Taughtenbaum and C. E. Phelan, both of Salida, Colo., are dead and nineteen are injured, several seriously, as the result of a crash in a head-on collision between a "Panoramic Special Train," and another train on the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad in the canon of the Arkansas River, near Granite Rock, a little mountain town, late yesterday.

The engineers were saved by jumping when the crash occurred. Failure on the part of a telegraph operator at Tennessee Pass to transmit orders to train No. 8, was reported to have been responsible for the wreck. Both of the trains were heavily loaded with summer tourists. They came together at a curve in Granite Canon and two coaches of train No. 8 were derailed and tossed against the canon wall near the banks of the Arkansas River.

Both were specials of the Denver & Rio Grande and rated as the fastest and most completely equipped on the line, being all Pullman trains.

Lawson's Best Work Done at His Home

Was Probably the Most Picuresque Publisher Since the Days of Henry Watterson.

Chicago, Aug. 21. (United Press).—Victor F. Lawson, who died here Wednesday night, was probably the most picturesque publisher since the days of Henry Watterson of Louisville.

His brown beard, square topped derby (which he ordered in dozens) and his long ulster were familiar sights as he passed through the streets of Chicago.

Lawson's best work was done at his Lake Shore Drive mansion where a single light in his study often burned until 1 and 2 a. m. Although he was known as Chicago's hardest working publisher, Lawson spent little time at the office of his paper in recent years. The sign on his private office door gave his office hours as "12 to 1."

One of Victor Lawson's greatest disappointments was that he had no children of his own. This fact was believed responsible for his tireless work in behalf of youthful unfortunates, the founding of the Daily News fresh air fund and the Lincoln Park sanitarium for he sick children.

No word of the reasons for the arrests were given out until police today told of motor car theft cases. Three stolen cars were found in Drexel, taken from Linville, according to police. Several other motors were sold without the bill of sale to farmers.

SHAKE-UP IN THE DRY ARMY

W. D. MOSS, ST. LOUIS, NAMED ACTING DIRECTOR.

LINES ATTACK NAMED

Moss To Have Charge Over Missouri, Kansas and Illinois—24 Regional Directors Appointed.

Washington, D. C., August 21.—Appointment of twenty-four regional directors by assistant secretary of the treasury department, all of whom will take part in the drastic movement to clean up the United States, was instituted today in the greatest shake-up of the American enforcement of the prohibition law.

W. D. Moss of St. Louis has been appointed to have charge of the states of Missouri, Kansas and Illinois.

The new officials, only a part of whom were recruited from the ranks of the present prohibition directors, were instructed to "eliminate bootleg industry on direct orders from the first assistant of the treasury, Lincoln Andrews."

The main lines of attack were outlined by Andrews as the wiping out of the supply, including, manufacture in this country and the importation from foreign countries; and the education of the public of the dangers lying in the use of bootleg liquor.

Elimination of conspiracies to violate the prohibition laws in the larger cities, which elevated persons in all walks of life participate, was given as one of the chief reasons for the prohibition officers' problem. As a secondary action on the bootleg industry the new administrators were told "to assist and help local law enforcement officials."

"Our action along this line will be the matter of the exercise of judgment, initiative and the resourcefulness on the part of the district administrators to the problems peculiar to their own locality," said Secretary Andrews.

Some of the twenty-four directors had the word "acting" after their names. The seven directors are:

R. D. Sims, Boston; J. A. Foster, New York City; Merrick of Buffalo, N. Y.; Ewing of Chicago; W. D. Moss, St. Louis; A. C. Townsend, St. Paul; and Crabbe, Honolulu.

Simultaneous with the announcement of the first personnel of the dry army and orders of General Andrews, "analysis of the situation" for the benefit of the agents and the public, Andrews explained, that the men appointed were only as acting administrators and probably would be replaced by September 1 by permanent officers. This was particularly true of regional directors Ewing of Chicago, Moss of St. Louis and Townsend of St. Paul. Sims, Foster and Merrick, all old holdovers of the internal revenue department may be replaced.

If they are replaced they will undoubtedly be assigned as deputy administrators as Andrews is anxious to have all experienced men available in the dry army.

ROADS AND AUTOMOBILES

Between the public which constructs the roads on which they run and the manufacturers who build the automobiles that run on them there should be a greater degree of cooperation in ascertaining what is essential to bringing highway and vehicle into the most perfect accord. The universally adaptable road has not been built yet; nor the universally adaptable motor vehicle, though more progress has been made with the latter than with the former. Yet there has been no experimenting in common by the two parties whose interests often are held to be opposed but which are actually alike.

Here and there states have built stretches of road in which have been embodied every known variety of pavement and for considerable periods all possible traffic has been sent over them under the observation of engineers. Most manufacturers maintain try-out courses for their cars. Probably both parties got satisfaction out of their experiments and both road building and car construction have been improved as a result of the tests made. But as they were both studying with a different end in view it is not likely that compensation for the expenditures of money, time and effort was adequate.

Road builders and car builders ought to cooperate in this matter. Did they we might discover the universally efficient road. Fitting automobiles to it would follow as a matter of course.

One of the great companies producing motor vehicles of all types and varieties has bought more than 1,000 acres of Michigan land on which it will create a "proving ground" for its products. The system of roads there will include all types and conditions, "such as the most modern paving, good and poor country roads, hills of all kinds and descriptions, as well as roads specially constructed to determine various factors of car performance." This experimentation should not be left to private enterprise. The public which provides through taxation the roads over which it must drive its cars has a large stake in the discovery of the road that fits the car and the car that fits the road. The federal government and the states should cooperate with the automotive industry in making all-embracing tests.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—If ever you want anything from the State Department make up your mind to snoop in and beg—unless you're worth at least a million or have a strong political pull.

The State Department is the government's snobocracy. You take off your hat when you go there—or get the icy stare. What's more, you get turned down.

Say you want a passport to go somewhere. You think you're entitled to one. Well, you're not, if the State Department disapproves.

No explanation required, either. Some departments are required by law to do certain things. Nearly everything is left to the State Department to handle as it thinks best.

Be diplomatic with the State Department if you want it to be diplomatic with you.

(Copyright, 1925, Assoc. Eds., Inc.)

The treasury department is on the job to 'tend to your legitimate business. It puts on no airs, as the State Department does, but it's rushed. State your case briefly. Get your answer. No, no argument. Next, please.

The Justice Department always was snowed under with work.

It isn't like the Treasury Department, which is busy but keeps on top of its job. The Justice Department is behind and everlastingly.

It listens to you, but it listens with a worried air, conscious that all the time it's delayed it's getting deeper and deeper into the hole.

The War Department is more human than you might expect. In peace times it's rather dependent on public good will. It needs money in large chunks. It realizes it won't get it unless it's popular.

All but pacifists get nice treatment at the Department of War.

The Postoffice Department, of all the departments, is closest to the most people. It shows this. It understands—because it knows you.

The Navy Department, like the War Department, realizes its need of popularity and bids for it by being polite. Like the War Department again, its one aversion is the pacifist. If you're one, don't come around. Otherwise you get the glad hand.

Hobbies of the Great and Near Great in American National Life

SENATOR WILLIAM H. KING.

All humanity having carried its grief to his door, Senator William H. King (D. of Utah) has developed a hobby of crusading for the establishment of tolerance throughout the world.

A firm believer in the Jeffersonian theories of government, Senator King has raised his voice unceasingly to champion the rights of weaker nations and lesser peoples. Nations, States, communities have appealed to him time and again for aid against real or fancied wrongs and King never has failed to give them this help. He probably is the nation's outstanding exponent of the doctrines of State's rights, self determination of peoples and for tolerance in world affairs.

In his meteoric political career, King has won prominence by championing the causes of the Armenians against Turkish oppression, of the Haitians against American intolerance, of the German people against Allied oppression, of the Philippines against American interference, of the Russian people against all outside intervention, and of the Greek nation against Turkish encroachments. This has been his great hobby.

In the forum of the Senate, King has fought their battles, seeking, sometimes in vain, to force the American Government to use its good influence to correct the complained of evils. He does not always succeed, but he always does a good job of fighting.

Gives Up Vacations.

King even neglects his vacations to investigate the exact conditions which have caused the appeals to him for aid.

Two years ago he visited Haiti and San Domingo at his own expense to see the exact situation which had caused the Haitians to protest against the presence of American troops. He returned convinced that the United States was "violating" its own Monroe Doctrine, and forthwith he demanded the recall of all American troops. Similarly, it was his voice which was first raised to demand recall of the American Army of Occupation from Germany, and in that he subsequently won a victory.

A year ago he visited Russia, Poland and Siberia to determine at first hand whether the Russian Soviet Government was worthy of American recognition. He returned opposed to national recognition, but firm in the belief that the United States should develop trade with the Russian people and that all outside nations should let Russia work out her own political problems.

Visits Balkans.

This Summer he goes to Armenia, Greece and the Balkans to determine whether the Turkish Government has violated the Sevres Treaty. He wants to know the facts so he can act upon appeals from American friends of Greece and Armenia for relief from Turkish oppression. Probably no other man in the capital has given so much of his own time to national and international problems as has King.

Throughout the sessions of Congress he spends more hours in his office than any other member devotes to similar work. Some nights the lights burn over his desk until long after midnight. Anecdotes of King's long hours no longer get a smile among Senate employes. They know the Utah Senator has long ago won all prizes for hours of labor.

The Senator keeps a great law library. He began gathering it when he was named a Justice of the State Supreme Court, in Utah, before he was thirty and when only four years out of college. It is one of the largest private libraries in Washington.

The Senator's favorite authors are Darwin, Goethe, Huxley and Spencer. He believes every young man and woman should read the Bible, Greene's History of England and Plato's Republic. He also is a Shakespearean student, and in former days he loved to watch Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett or Henry Irving portraying the roles that came from the Bard's pen.

Tomorrow—Senator George W. Norris.

Uncle Sam Buys His Own Bonds as Way to Wipe Out His Debt

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—The treasury is taking advantage of current prices for government bonds by buying them for the sinking fund, which eventually will wipe out the national debt.

Since July 1, $26,000,000 worth of third Liberty bonds have been repurchased for this purpose.

The third Liberties which have been obtained would have fallen due in 1928, and because of this early maturity the premium is lower ordinarily than on other government securities.

It is considered probable at the treasury that a very large portion of the entire sinking fund for the current year, which will total upward of $300,000,000, will be devoted to retiring such portions of the third loan as the government may be enabled to buy.

Was Paroled for Beating His Wife

St. Louis, Aug. 21—(United Press) John Van Hest a tailor has been paroled from serving time for wife beating.

Van Hest appeared before the parole board with a half hearted plea to be allowed out of jail. None of the board seemed to listen to his plea with the exception of William T. Findly, secretary to Mayor Miller.

"It's the old man that always catches it in the neck," Findly said. "It's about time the old man came in for something. In this day the head of the family is the angora.

"We have a father's day. That's Christmas. After everybody has spent father's money and he has his annual pair of socks, he gets three cheers and a tiger."

It seemed, according to evidence introduced that Van Hest earned $18 a week and that his wife got the money. He got nothing—according to what was said at the hearing, not even carfare.

Findly wound up his plea by saying that locking the man up wouldn't help the family out this winter.

So Van Hest got his parole.

Conditions Warrants Better Wheat Prices

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Farmers are entitled to much better prices for their wheat and if they avail themselves of the "best opportunity now affords" they will profit thereby, the American Farm Bureau Federation declared in a statement.

The total United States yield and carry over, eliminating Burum or Macaroni seed, totals around 694,000,000 bushels, the bureau estimated.

Helpful to the American farmer is the short Asiatic crop and greater European consumption, due to betterment of the economic structure, the bureau holds.

A CALL TO SERVICE.

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for August 23, 1925. Read Acts 16. Wm. Southern, Jr.

A laugh would greet one who would point to a poor man, a man of no material possessions and declare him to be a millionaire. Yet there are many such, men who have not accumulated any property nor any money, but whose lives have been worth millions to the community.

Paul never accumulated a million dollars as far as our record shows. Indeed we are told that he was a tentmaker and that he often earned his way by his labor. Yet Paul was many times a millionaire and the value of the services of this Roman citizen and Christian preacher can not be measured in property nor in dollars.

Paul started out on his second missionary journey in a bad humor. His refusal to take with him John Mark lost him the companionship of his friend Barnabas. He started with a new partner and picked up Timothy on the way. He wanted to go into Asia, after he had visited the churches founded during his previous journey. He made several starts but in some way his every plan was thwarted. We do not know why nor how the doors were shut. Dr. Luke, the historian, says very simply, "and the Spirit of Jesus suffered him not." Some of us may want a more definite reason. Some of us may be unable to see "The Holy Spirit" in anything or connect it with any of our own experiences. To me it is the simplest and the plainest of explanations. The life of every one of us is governed just that way. How many young men do you know who started out to be lawyers or doctors or newspapermen and ended by being merchants or politicians? Perhaps there is no reader of this who can not remember in his own life some change of plan which he did not expect.

I can remember very well when I wanted to be a train butcher. I thought it would be fine to ride on the trains and sell things to the passengers. My father had a vineyard and I was going to get the grapes from that vineyard.

It is not hard for me to believe that Paul was directed by the Holy Spirit. After wandering about for 700 miles, prevented from entering the large cities where he loved to preach, disappointed and as discouraged, as a man of Paul's courage can ever be, he and his little company landed at Troas on the coast. Here came his vision.

He had in his travels probably met many Macedonians. He knew the history of this country, he knew that at Troas he was near the scenes the poets describe. Homer and Vergil, Priam and the home of the beautiful Helen where the shifty Greeks used the wooden horse. He knew that Macedonia was a Roman province. Here was Philippi founded by Philip, the father of Alexander the Great. He knew the story of the great fight some ninety years before when Octavius and Mark Anthony defeated Brutus and Cassius.

Looking across toward Europe, Paul saw a vision and heard a call. "Come over into Macedonia, and help us." Luke the historian, joined Paul at Troas. Perhaps Luke was the Macedonian. Luke and Paul may have been old time college friends at Tarsus where both studied and where there was a great medical college. Some authorities say that Paul met Dr. Luke first at Troas, perhops called him in as a physician, but I like to think that they were old friends and that Luke had already been converted and joined Paul for service. However this may be Luke joined the party at Troas and continued with Paul in his work for a time.

The men were lonesome in Philippi. There were few Jews there, not enough to have a synagogue. There were Gentiles of every fashion, people who worshipped many gods and no gods. On the first Sabbath morning they left the city and went to the riverside. It was a custom among the Jews to worship by the riverside when they had no building. God always seems closer to us when we get close to nature and away from the tall buildings and the hurrying crowds. Here they found a group of women headed by Lydia, from Thyatira, a wealthy dealer in fine dry goods. She was the first Christian convert in Europe and Paul and his party lived at her home while in that section.

The door of Asia was closed to Paul but the door of Europe was opened and Christianity went to Europe. Suppose this had not happened. Suppose Paul had been permitted to go on into Asia. Would the great Cathedrals of Europe, would the great Christian artists, the great Christian poets, the great Christian sculptors, the great Christian preachers, the great Christian rulers of Europe, who have meant so much to Christianity, would they have been Chinese? Would Christianity have passed on into the East and the whole history of the world been changed? Where would we of America be today, we who spring from Christian Europeans, would we have a Christian United States? And yet some scoff at the words Luke wrote and try to find other reasons why Paul was turned back out of Asia and carried Christianity to Europe.

The first Christian convert in Europe was a woman and this woman was the busiest woman in the city. Did you ever notice in our churches that whenever the preacher wants anything done he always selects the busiest man or woman in the church? These are the people who do things. If you have a big job to attend to, pick out the busiest person in reach and get it done.

I have no patience with the pessimist. I have no patience with those who claim that old fashioned piety is out of date. I have no patience with those who are afraid the Bible will be destroyed or that the criticism of men may prove it to be inaccurate or false.

Go back now and read the story of Paul. God was using Paul and directing him. He shut the doors Paul wished to enter and [illegible] wise.

Dr. English to Speak at the Elmo Church

(By Edgar O. Wells, Minister)

Two excellent services with a fine congregation in the morning, marked the day, but the appearance of heavy rain which began falling about the time the evening sermon began, kept many away, which did not in any way, except in the size of the congregation, interfere with the services, which was in one way unique, in that the scripture lesson was by invitation, read by Miss Margery Teuscher. The sermon, which as advertised in the papers was preached by the Rev. Trevor Winney, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Burr Oak, Mo., was, in several respects, worthy of a man of riper years, and longer experiences than has been his, and was listened to with interest by all. The official board which recommended him for license to preach last May, will no doubt look back with pride, and forward in anticipation to a successful ministry for our young brother. His wife, who is the daughter of Mr. Stewart Williamson, will be a helpmate to him, and the beautiful solo rendered by her, is still ringing in the ears of the writer of these lines.

The people of Elmo will have an opportunity to hear the Rev. Charles J. English, who is the representative of our retired ministers, and bespeak a hearing for him. The evening service will be given by the Intermediate classes of our Sunday School, with vocal and violin solos and should have a large hearing. The fourth quarterly meeting will be held by Dr. E. B. Thompson, and the hour will be 2:00 p. m, Monday. Full reports, will be expected from Supt. of Sunday School, Trustees and pastor. Please bring all financial obligations in full. The Conference year will soon close. Be ready for it.

Many Changes Made on Building—Three Teachers Added to Grade School Faculty

The Barnard Public Schools will open Monday, August 31. During the summer vacation a number of improvements have been made upon the building. Two rooms down stairs has been remodeled and re-painted, as have those of the halls. A new sky light has been placed in the third story where the domestic science and sewing rooms have been placed.

Three additions have been made to the elementary school faculty. Miss Vada Cliser of Maryville will be in charge of the primary room and second grade. Mrs. Verdie Witt of St. Joseph will have part of the fifth grade with the sixth and seventh. The high school faculty will remain the same as last year.

It is expected that the enrollment will exceed that of last years, according to Superintendent Ed Adams.

Made $339.08 From Sale of Eggs in Year

(Burlington Junction Post)

Here is an egg record that the writer thinks is hard to beat and one that certainly shows the profit there is in poultry raising when one gives it the proper attention.

Jack Friend, manager of the Tyler Brothers produce house tells us that Mrs. Joe Messbarger had marketed for the year up to August 1 a total of 1,391½ dozen eggs, which brought her the neat sum of $339.08, and in addition to that sold for setting and used herself for that purpose 226 2-3 dozen.

How many poultry raisers in this section can beat this record? The Post would like to hear from them or from any others who have made good records.

They are making the trip in their car and have just recently returned from a trip to Colorado. Mr. Flowers formerly lived in Maryville and later located at Burlington Junction where he was associated with Roy Andrews in a bankery.

Who Knows of a John Spencer's Parents?

Was Born Here in 1818, Moving to Illinois and Later to California Letter to Fred Smith.

Information regarding a certain John Spencer's parents has been requested of Fred W. Smith, secretary of Nodaway Lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 165, by a John Spencer, now visiting with his mother at Austin, Nev.

The Mr. Spencer at Austin, Nev., states in his letter to Mr. Smith that his father was born at Maryville, Mo., March 17, 1818, later moving to Illinois, and from there to California. From California he moved to Austin, Nev., where he resided until the time of his death, January 8, 1891. John Spencer, son of the Mr. Spencer, born at Maryville, desires to get the name of his grandfather and grandmother, and the nationality of their parents.

Mr. Smith said this morning there was some question as to the date of 1818, which is mentioned in the letter, as Nodaway County was not organized as a county until about 1845. However, if there is any person who might know of the information requested, Mr. Smith would be glad to hear from him.

Pierce Stays Full 10 Minutes With Karras

At the conclusion of the Robbins Brothers Circus last night a "Big Wild West Show" and wrestling match was advertised, which held many of the persons attending the main show. The circus people "spoofed" the crowd as far as the Wild West show was concerned, but the wrestling match went the full ten minutes with the circus wrestler getting the worst end of the deal.

A local boy, just 19 years of age, Harvey Pierce, took the aggressive with his opponent, Gus Karras, the latter being known to Maryville wrestling fans as he made his headquarters here for a couple winters ago. The conditions of the match were that the man who would stay with Karras for every minute up to ten minutes he would receive a dollar a minute.

Karras didn't have a show with the Maryville boy and when the ten minutes were up a circus man yelled, "This way out."

H. G. Ebert Visiting Here for a Few Days

Will Resume Duties as Coach at Drake University September 1—Zieglers to Be Here Tomorrow

Harold G. Ebert, commercial law and civics instructor at the Maryville High School for the last two years and coach of the Spoofhound teams, arrived in Maryville yesterday. He was accompanied by Harold ("Bunk") Miller, son of Dr. and Mrs. Jesse Miller, who has been in Chicago most of the summer.

Mr. Ebert will be in Maryville the rest of the month and will be a guest at the Miller home.

The former Spoofhound coach will leave here the latter part of August to take up his new duties at Drake University, Des Moines, Ia., where he was this last spring elected as freshman and Varsity coach of that institution.

During a few weeks of the summer he attended a coaching school at Champaign, Ill., and was under the tutelage there of America's foremost track, basketball and football coaches.

Mr. Ebert also made a trip into Tennessee to a boys' camp where one of his former coaches was in charge and returning through Missouri he stopped at Fayette where he saw Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Ziegler. He said the Zieglers are expected to leave Fayette today for Maryville, arriving here tomorrow.

Returns From Colorado.

Mrs. Minnie Vanscoy returned this morning from a five weeks' visit at points in Colorado. She visited her son, Warren Vanscoy, at Denver, a sister at Greeley and a brother at Akron. Her son, Arlo Vanscoy, and Mrs. Vanscoy, of Hopkins are spending the day in Maryville.

A Carrier Boy Tells What He Saw at the Circus

The circus, as "it really was" is told by Wallace Culver, one of the carrier boys for the Democrat-Forum and Tribune. Young Culver's contribution as he saw the circus yesterday follows:

"The Robbins Bros. circus showing in Maryville yesterday had two good performances, although it got in too late to have a parade.

"The afternoon performance did not start until after 3 o'clock. They had a very good sideshow. They had a fairly large menagerie containing some cages of lions, tigers, two different kinds of bears, and several small species of animals, such as monkeys, dogs and seals.

"The grounds in some places were covered with an inch or two of water.

"The performance started with a group of dancing girls performing before a powerful searchlight which threw differently colored lights on them, making a very beautiful scene. Next came a parade around the arena, with the band leading and several horses following. A group of Indians followed with a couple of elephants behind. A woman was seated on one of them and sang several songs.

"Many different acts followed and were performed very skillfully by animals and humans both. The seals especially performed very skillfully in spite of their akward motions. One of them played "America" on some kind of an instrument. Indians and cowboy stunts followed such as the attack on the covered wagon by Indians and a reproduction of carrying mail by pony express. One cowboy did several good roping acts. There were several clowns with their usual humor and fun.

"The main performance closed with a historical pageant depicting scenes of history from Paul Revere's ride down to where our khaki clad boys went over there.

"They had characters impersonating George Washington, Abe Lincoln, General Grant and Robert E. Lee. They had a Wild West show and a wrestling match after the main performance in the evening."

This is the tale of William Barks,

And when he went to fix his car,
He shut it in the garret,

He repeated word for word.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK.

By
Edson R. Waite, Secretary
Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

That the thrifty housewife always reads the grocery ads and is ever alert to read the food suggestions advertised, for in them something can always be found for jaded appetites.

That modern food dealers who make selling of pure foods and cleanliness a part of their business, advertise.

That advertisers believe in making neatness and orderliness an outstanding feature, and leave nothing undone to present their foods in the most attractive manner possible.

That satisfaction with the food you buy will be just what you wish to make it.

That satisfaction depends upon the quality you get for your money.

That good food is advertised; no other kind can stand the light of advertising.

Food dealers who are persistent advertisers always lead; they never follow. They always progress with the times. They always carry a great variety. Their quality always remains the best because they buy the best that money can buy.

Food dealers who advertise make their prices fair and reasonable and tell you in the ads their prices. They have nothing to hide, not one price for you and another price for the other person.

Experience teaches a lot of people things they should have known. Read the ads; know what is offered, then buy where the best buys are.

Chicago Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Wheat made moderate gains in trading on the board of trade today. Corn followed.

Oats dropped off fractionally.

Most gains in wheat were scored in last hours of trading. Previously the market fluctuated in the most erratic fashion.

Fair commission house buying induced by the stronger tendencies in wheat boosted corn.

Trade was confined to commission houses.

Oats was easy and fractionally lower.

Provisions managed to hold gains scored on early buying predicted on predictions of a lighter hog movement.

GOOD HOPE.

Aug. 20: The hard rain last night will help the farmers from their harrowing and sowing as several had in mind to do today. This surely is a fine time to get the alfalfa seed sown, so it will get a good start before the cold weather.

Guy Blanchard finished threshing yesterday and started home with his machine from Glen Thomas but got no farther than Tine Miller's when he had to fix up the rig on account of the rain and leave it.

Mr. and Mrs. Tine Miller are taking care of their granddaughter while the daughter, Mrs. Chas. Massie and Mr. Massie are on a trip to different points in Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Maslin Harris, G. B. Ulmer and daughter, Miss Thelma have gone to East Prairie, Mo., on a visit with Mr. Harris' parents and friends. Mrs. Harris taught there last year.

Mrs. Tim Butts and son, Billie, who live in Denver, Colo., were to start this morning for their home, after a month's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Wells and her brother, Ross family. Mr. and Mrs. Wells were going to motor across to Alliance, Nebr., Mrs. Butts going with them to visit a son, Harlan and wife. Harlan is working in a bank in Alliance.

The canning season is on in full force. The pickling, preserving and jelly making occupies the time of the housekeepers these days. There is a scarcity of plums, in peaches, but enough of the different fruits for a little variety.

Oliver Wilson hauled wheat to Hopkins, Tuesday, getting $1.48 but that day the market was off; yesterday he started to Hopkins with a load for Ab Sours but the rain caused him to pull under shelter at Charley Taylors.

CLOSING OUT PUBLIC SALE

As I am leaving the farm, I will give a closing out sale at my present residence, one mile north of Pickering and seven miles southwest of Hopkins, on

FULTON DELAYS NO. 2 HIGHWAY

INJUNCTION SECURED YESTERDAY A BLOW TO KANSAS CITY

ACTION IS REGRETTED

Contracts Cannot Be Awarded Until Spring, Engineer Says—Ruling Will Hit Other Work.

Jefferson City, Aug. 21.—Completion of route No. 2, the primary state highway between Kansas City and St. Louis, will be delayed at least a year because of the action yesterday by Judge Henry J. Westhues of the Cole County circuit court. Judge Westhues granted a temporary injunction in favor of the citizens of Fulton, which restrains the highway department for completing that part of the highway in Callaway and Boone counties between Perche Creek, four miles west of Columbia to the end of the concrete pavement seven miles northwest of Fulton, a distance of thirty-five miles.

Plans of the highway commission had called for completion of this highway the early part of 1926.

Too Late to Award Contracts.

The temporary injunction under the order granted yesterday is not returnable until November of this year, which will be too late to award the contracts, according to B. H. Piepmeier, chief engineer. "It is necessary that large fills stand all winter after grading is completed and before the concrete is laid," Piepmeier said, "and November will be to late to award such contracts, for the reason that the contractors will not be able to get the work done before winter sets in. Even if the commission wins in November it will be some time in the spring of 1926 before the contracts can be awarded."

If the injunction is made permanent the commission will be required to relocate the road through Fulton. The route now laid out, which the commission is enjoined from completing, passes about seven miles north of the town.

Both Marshall and Lexington were in the original route as designated by the legislature, but acquieseed in the commission's decision when they were left off so that the route might be shortened

Holds Up Columbia Stretch.

In addition to trying up that part of the highway in Callaway Cunty, the petitioners, represented by State Senator Nick T. Cave, would be responsible for the highway department's inability to complete a 4-mile stretch from Perche Creek bridge into Columbia, which would have completed the pavement between Kansas City and Columbia this fall, Mr. Piepmeier said.

The commission intends also delaying work on the pavement between Moberly and Columbia and from Mexico south to connect with route No. 2, since it feels such work would be unnecessary while the location of the road is in doubt.

A case similar to that filed by Senator Cave now is pending in the supreme court from St. Charles and Warren County, on appeal from the circuit court here. The injunction was filed, overruled by the court and appealed by the petitioners to the supreme court. A decision in this case would greatly expedite the Fulton case.

Regrets Action.

Mr. Piepmeier declined to comment in detail on the injunction but gave for publication a copy of his report to the commission, which follows:

"I regret to report that Judge Westhues, at Jefferson City, today granted a temporary injunction in favor of the citizens of Fulton, preventing the state highway commission from letting contracts for the completion of the Kansas City-St. Louis road from the Perche Creek bridge, four miles west of Columbia, to the end of the existing concrete pavement seven miles northeast of Fulton.

"You will recall that acting upon a previous decision of the lower court to the effect that the commission is empowered to locate primary roads in the interest of economy and directness of route, you instructed me to proceed with the location of this particular section of road, and to let the work on August 28 of this year, so that there would be no delay in the completion of this road in 1926.

"If the work were let this month, the successful bidder could do a large portion of his grading this fall, build the bridges and store materials, so that the concrete pavement could be finished early next year and the Kansas City-St. Louis road be completed and opened for traffic in compliance with your wishes and orders.

Until November or Later.

"The temporary injunction undoubtedly will stand until the present case now pending before the supreme court which concerns the location of the Kansas iCty,St. Louis road through St. Charles County, is decided. The St. Charles case is scheduled for October. This, in effect, will mean that no decision will be made on the Fulton case until November or later.

"I regret very much, therefore, to inform you that it will be impossible because of this injunction to complete the Kansas City-St. Louis road in 1926, as much of the grading should be done over this particular section of road this fall, so that fills could settle prior to constructing pavement. Our inability to store materials along the line this fall and winter will also seriously delay construction work next year if we are permitted to proceed.

"The terms of the injunction are such that we cannot extend the concrete pavement from the Perche Creek bridge, four miles west of Columbia, into Columbia, thereby completing the pavement from Kansas City to Columbia this fall.

"I wish to further advise that the delay in the building of this part of the Kansas City-St. Louis road will impose a heavy burden upon the department in the maintenance of the narrow gravel and macadam road which now exists between Columbia and Fulton, as it is entirely inadequate to take care of the cross-state traffic that is using this highway. I wish also to advise that since we will not be able to finish this part of the Kansas City-St. Louis road, it is not so important that we rush the completion of the pavement from Moberly to Columbia, or from Mexico south to connect with the Kansas City-St. Louis road north of Fulton."

Miss Stalling of Barnard Makes Trip to Europe on Leviathan and Visits Many Places of Note There

The following letter was received from Miss Blanche Stalling of Barnard by John E. Rush, editor of the Barnard Bulletin, dated Mainz, Germany, August 2.

Miss Stalling is making a tour of the European countries, leaving Nodaway County in May. She is to visit the home of her father's relatives at Oldenburg, and at Berlin and other points of interest in that country. Miss Stalling is expected to sail for America September 15. Her letter is as follows:

Knowing there are a number of my friends at home who are interested in my trip to the Old Country and as it is impossible for me to remember all by card or letter, I am writing a few lines for publication so all will know I haven't forgotten anyone.

We had a very pleasant voyage on the ocean, having fine weather all the way over with the exception of one day, running into rain, but lasting only a few hours. This day the sea was somewhat rough but the S. S. Leviathan is so large one did not notice the rolling of the boat a great deal. Only a few were sea-sick from the Student Tour Section and I am glad to say I never missed eating a meal.

One death occurred on the ship, that of an elderly man, but when we disembarked at Cherboweg, France, the Leviathan carried the same number of passengers as a newly born babe and mother were taken off the ship.

It is impossible to describe the S. S. Leviathan in a letter but I was glad of having the privilege of going on every deck, seeing the engine room, cabins of first, second and third class etc. One can think of the ship as a little city, as all your wants can be supplied Medical attention is given free. Every afternoon tea pasteries were served. Two hundred and fifty passengers were in the Students Tour Class and this does not include the first, second and third class passengers. Mid-Atlantic Olympic games were played on deck for the recreation of the passengers, contestants being named the Whales and the Sharks. A concert and program given by the passengers helped to pass away the hours of the evening. We made the voyage from N. Y. to Cherboweg in five days, twelve hours, and forty-six minutes, with an average speed of 26.36 knots or 28.01 land miles per hour. The total distance was 3,235 miles.

Landing at Cherboweg we were taken to the custom house where our baggage was examined. Mr. Klebber having fifty cigars instead of twenty, the limited number, was made to pay $2.50 duty on the extra thirty cigars. The baggage we checked was not examined.

At Cherboweg, we took the International train direct to Paris, the city so much talked of. We were there five days, so did not see all of interest in the city. One day was spent at Versailles, the city where the Germans signed the peace treaty of the late war and where the palace of Louis XIV is built. Leaving Paris, we came to Mainz, our home while in Germany. We passed through Chautau Thuerey, Eperney, Chalons, Bar DeLuc and Metz seeing only a few ruins of the war as the greater parts were rebuilded. Excursion trips of one and two days could be taken to the war districts, but as our time was limited and there was so much to see in Paris, we did not make the trip.

From Mainz we have made a few trips through Germany. One week we made the trip on the Rhine from Mainz to Cologne, a trip no one should miss when touring Germany. It is impossible to describe the scenery along the Rhine. From Mainz to Rudesheim you get a view of the small cities which are reached from five to ten minutes by boat. From Rudesheim to Cologne the Rhine becomes narrower and deeper and your view is mostly of vineyards growing on the steep banks and old castles builded on the high cliffs. The cities are farther apart. One can hardly realize the commercial activity on the Rhine. At Cologne we attended the one thousand year exposition which is a drawing card for many German Americans this year. Here we saw the ancient culture and art of the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth centuries as well as the modern advancement. A week's time at this exposition is not enough.

Our return trip to Mainz was made by trains coming through the Tunas Mountains and following the river Lahn to Bad Ams where we stopped between trains. Boarding the train again, we were taken to wonderful old Frankfort on the Main. Here our sight-seeing bus took us to the old Ramu Building or court house, an interesting place of olden days, also the Dom or Cathedral where ten of the early Kaisers were crowned. And the Palm Garden where Palm and Cactus from different parts of the world are growing. Some were from California, Arizona and Mexico.

Last week we made a tour of Southern Germany, seeing the city of Munchen where the famous Munchen beer flows, the best made in Germany. When eating at the hotels or cafes, a wine card is given you and you are out of luck if you drink neither beer or wine, as you must wait for coffee or tea to be made. Water, you can always have but you see no one drinking it, and in order to fulfill all my promises I made on leaving home, I must drink beer, as all said "Drink one on me." Can you imagine what I thought when I read in an English paper yesterday that prisoners were being pardoned to make room for the dry law offenders in the states?

From Munchen we traveled west touching the border of Austria and making a little mountain trip from here by auto, used in connection with the mail to one of the noted castles or Schlosses builded by King Louis II. The building is of marble and no little time and money was spent in furnishing the rooms. However, this king only lived in the castle two years.

We returned by auto to the station and journeyed on to Kempston, Lindau on the Boden sea, taking the boat to Constant, a ride of three hours. Being a rainy day, we could not see the beauty of the Switzerland Alps clearly, but what we could see was wonderful. We passed by Friedrichshafen where the "Los Angeles" airship was constructed. From Constant we came to Baden-Baden, the cure place for all those who are afflicted, and the place is so pretty one felt they would like to play sick so they might go and "take the cure" as the Germans say. At Baden-Baden there are ten springs flowing hot water.

Our next day was spent in Heidelburg, the place noted for its University. When you see a young man with scars on his face one can judge that he received them while attending the University at Heidelberg. Schloss at Heidelberg is very interesting but it will take too long to go into detail.

France has an army of occupation stationed at Mainz and Coblenz, including a radius of thirty kils. England has the same radius at Cologne. We find England's attitude toward the Germans a great deal different than that of the French. In the cities of Mainz and Weisbaden the Germans, as well as foreigners, must carry a passport with them. One evening when coming from Weisbaden to Mainz by street car there were fifteen cars held up by French officers looking over every passport and if you are unable to produce a pass, you are fined.

Radios are forbidden the Germans in the occupied territory so that territory isn't advancing as fast as the unoccupied. The Germans do not feel they have made a mistake in the election of Von Heindenburg, but feel he is the man for the place.

Our homeward journey will begin about September 1, making Dresden, Berlin, Hamburg, Oldenburg, the home of my father's people, Belgium and England. We leave South Hampton the 15th of September and I am trusting the ocean will be calm as when we came over, as I would like to deprive the fishes of any banquet they might enjoy at my expense.

Auf Weider Schen from across the deep blue sea.
